The Prophecy: Continued

As resource shortages and climate change, or as better put decline continue to threaten mankind, politics shall come to a bifuraction of two logical extremes that ignores social politic alltogether, this being favoring the continued entrenchment of contemporary status quo of luxury in living quality for the elite, this threatening our resources amid a scenario of resource ruination, and that of whatever is best for maximal human survival.

The primacht of the singularity shall have these two opposed logical extremes.
